

Candy Christophe, LCSW, LAC

A licensed clinical social worker, addiction counselor, and serial entrepreneur who built a million-dollar business with her husband. Candy found herself just 72 hours from divorce after 32 years of marriage. Today, Candy equips high-capacity leaders with the tools to build extraordinary success while protecting the legacy of their marriage, their family, and the organizations they are leading—because You can have both™: Success & Wholeness.

Business & Professional
Association

Winning in public. Losing at home. It doesn't have to be that way.
Your business is thriving—but your marriage is barely surviving.
What good is winning everywhere else if you're losing at home?

- ▶ When the Leader Is Exhausted, the Organization Pays
How leadership burnout quietly damages teams, decisions, and performance.

What Leaders Walk Away With

1. Identify early warning signs of burnout, emotional disconnection, and relational drift in both their personal relationships and their teams.
2. Apply communication and partnership strategies that strengthen trust, alignment, and accountability at home and within leadership teams.
3. Use practical leadership boundaries and decision frameworks that protect both organizational performance and relationships that sustain long-term success.
